

Photography & Fashion, When Photography Meets Fashion

This unique course brings together the key concepts of both photography and fashion to provide students with introductory knowledge and skills in fashion photography. Emphasizing both technical photography skills and fashion industry insight, this course gives the student a well rounded understanding of the business of fashion and the role of the fashion photographer within the industry. To provide the student a real 'insider' perspective, this course also includes interactions with established fashion photographers, fashion designers, fashion magazines and modeling agencies.

Istituto di Moda Burgo was founded in Milan in 1961, by publisher Fernando Burgo, who is the school's director still today. It was formed with the objective of combining his passion for fashion with the idea of creating a college that would become a point of reference in the sector.

The objectives of the Istituto di Moda Burgo are:

- To provide a training in specific areas of fashion, such as Styling, Pattern Making and Fashion Design, imparting all-round skills and preparing professionals capable of competing at an international level.
- The development of an effective, specific teaching method in order to optimize its students' knowledge and learning.
- To establish an extensive network, with partnerships between Istituto di Moda Burgo and other Institutes all over the world

Techniques and tools

- Highly qualified teachers, specialists in their fields, constantly updated, and in close contact with the world fashion system.
- Innovative, simple, and periodically updated teaching techniques, individual lessons
- Advanced technical course material and textbooks, a fundamental source of reference for both beginners and experts in the field.

“INDIVIDUALITY”: this is our key word. Our founder developed a teaching method designed to enhance each student's individual capabilities. The carefully-planned programmes include all the specialist areas of fashion. Lessons are based on individual tuition (except for theory classes) which enables our students to learn quickly and optimize their time.
